J raises above violence

er brother Mōses Masiga played a huge role mentoring him to be a dj.

He explains that his older brother was also j so he followed his footsteps by exposing himself to music.

Dj Spizo believes he started his career mainly to emulate his role model Glen Lewis.

Spizo also confirms that he noticed the rising of his career in 2005 on Premium Monday's sessions at Plato.

His message to the youth of Kwatsaduza is: should stay true to their identity, always remain unique in whatever talent God has given them and also not to get easily influenced by the world/adopting wrong things.

Spizo works with dj Pips, Ndoza and Rooi his a member of an entertainment company named "Podomatic Connect" which began in 2006, the main part of their business is events planning and giving back to the community.

He highlights some of the community projects he has been involved in, such as Tornado, by raising funds for the youth in education.

He plays deep house and dance music, yet says he also loves hip/hop and neo soul as personal genres.

Some of the trials and tribulations he highlights is that he lost his father at a young age so his mother was a single parent raising all six of his siblings.

The hugest event he's been involved in was Wimbley Basketball League in Johannesburg where he shared a stage with HHP and Dj Spectacular.

Weekly, he says he plays for East Leisure and Badichillimo events in Kwatsaduza.

He concludes that his new mixtape is coming out on Podomatic or facebook on Dj Spizo Madodax titled "House Heaven Volume Eight".

Masimini hosts an art expo!

Sunday Masimini resident Thabo hosted an art exhibition/poetry session.

The event was aimed at bringing back the arts to Kwatsaduza and reviving poetry.

Event organiser Thabo says the community lacks awareness as far as the arts are concerned.

Thabo adds his aim was not to identify poetry but all elements of art.

He explains that local artists need to unite in order to be recognised in Kwatsaduza.

Visual artists, comedians and the Blue Gum Jazz band were the other artists present at the event.

Black Disciple, Size 10,

Mphumi Hadebe and Hazel Safaha were the highlighted poets who performed.

Author of the book "Ghetto Entrepreneurs", Non-tsikele Mzibomvu, gave a motivational speech to the youth regarding leadership, entrepreneurship, heredity and how to overcome challenges in life through education.

Kamogelo Masemola, visual artist, drawing Steve Biko's face.
